Drugstore search part of health care fraud investigation

FBI officials served a search warrant at Crume Drug Store at 111 W. Flaget Ave. in Bardstown 8 a.m. Tuesday.

"We will confirm that it's part of an ongoing health care fraud investigation," Tim Beam, acting chief division council for the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Louisville, said at 10:30 a.m.

Beam said he could not comment further on what officials were searching for as the investigation is ongoing, a joint investigation between the FBI, Health and Human Services and the Kentucky Board of Pharmacy.

After entering the store FBI agents appeared to be interviewing employees and others, and brought boxes down into the drugstore from a second-floor storage room.

Crume Drug Store is owned by Tim and Robbin Sizemore. Joseph Phillip Bowling owns the building, according to the Nelson County Property Valuation Administrator's office.

Bardstown Police Officer Tim Simpson and two Kentucky State Police troopers were on scene to assist and to ensure no one entered the drugstore.

Crume reopened for business at 2 p.m. Employees declined to comment. Robbin Sizemore did not return calls from The Kentucky Standard by press time.

Man sought after 4-county police chase

Female passenger arrested; driver's identity unknown

A man is still at large after allegedly leading police on a car chase across four counties early Saturday morning.

Police are still unsure of the male driver's identity, but passenger Nicki J. Niemann, 22, Huntingdon, Ind., was arrested in Campbellsville after the driver stopped the SUV and allegedly fled on foot.

The red 1999 Chevrolet Blazer was initially spotted about 1:48 a.m. turning left onto KY 49 from McDonald's in Bardstown, according to an arrest report from the Bardstown Police Department.

"Officer Mike Medley observed a Chevy Blazer pulling out of McDonald's kind of at a high rate of speed, squealing tires," Bardstown Police Chief

Kentucky Supreme Court ends redistricting debate

BRAD BOWMAN
bbowman@cnri.com

Confirming a ruling by the Franklin Circuit Court's order Friday, the Kentucky Supreme Court ruled state legislative 2012 elections will run based on the boundaries lines prior to House Bill 1.

The court ruled the boundaries didn't meet population requirements and new boundaries will not be drawn until possibly this time next year, according to State Rep. David Floyd.

"The confusion and cynicism the public has toward politics comes from this process," Floyd said. "I introduced House Bill 359, which proposed new district lines would not take effect until January of the following year. It would work for everyone. You wouldn't want to vote for a representative you've never met or talked to."

In 1992, the Kentucky Supreme Court decided to keep the redrawn districts, with the stipulation district boundaries would have to be drawn again before the next election. According to Sen. Jimmy Higdon there was a chance the same would have been done with House Bill 1.

"It could have gone either way and they (the court) could've set a new precedence," Higdon said. "They just didn't meet the one person one vote rule. We will have to draw new lines before 2014."

Man pleads guilty in death of Bardstown native

SARAH BENNETT
Landmark News Service

Accused murderer Joshua N. Hines accepted a plea deal Tuesday morning and admitted to killing his 36-year-old neighbor April 7, 2011.

Toni M. Ballard, 36, was shot to death in her own living room at 6932 Bardstown Road east of Elizabethtown. A Bardstown native, Ballard had returned home only minutes earlier after an afternoon visit with her landlord.

Thirteen of Ballard's family members looked on as 25-year-old Hines, arms folded, nodded and said "yes" when asked if he fired multiple gunshots at their loved one with intent to kill.

He denied having any kind of relationship with Ballard and said the shooting was unprovoked.

According to Kentucky State Police, the Elizabethtown man first confessed the night of the shooting death when he called 911. During the conversation with dispatchers, he reportedly informed police that he had shot his neighbor and may have killed her.

The commonwealth recommended 35 years in prison for the murder charge.

If Hardin Circuit Judge Kelly Mark Easton accepts the agreement, Hines will be eligible for parole after serving 20 years.

"Parole eligibility means just that," Easton said during Tuesday's motion hour. "You may be required to serve every day of 35 years."

A formal sentencing hearing is scheduled for 10 a.m. April 30.

During a court hearing last year, Kentucky State Police Detective Jason Propes said Hines gave investigators "no reasonable reason whatsoever" for the shooting.

Propes said officers arrested Hines after discovering Ballard dead in her living room of three gunshot wounds. Propes said he found no evidence of self-defense.

Two bullets were recovered, but officers weren't able to find one bullet they think went out through a storm door, he said. A revolver was recovered from Hines' home with three spent shell casings in the cylinder, police reported.

Hines was deemed eligible to assist in his own defense and was ordered to stand trial.

Although a competency hearing was held in the case and two experts advised Hines suffered from a mental disorder, the guilty plea does not cite mental

Bardstonian earns White House internship

2003 NCHS grad
Corey Sims works in the Office of the First Lady

ERIN L. MCCOY
emccoy@kystandard.com

For Bardstown native Corey Sims, politics and public service have always been about giving back to the community. Now, he is representing his community in a national forum: as a correspondence intern in the Office of the First Lady.

A 2003 graduate of Nelson County High School, Sims began his White House internship in January. Such internships are rumored to be highly competitive, and Sims submitted essays and letters of recommendation, besides undergoing multiple interviews, before he was selected. When he found out, his family back in Nelson County was elated.

“I immediately began receiving phone calls and text messages from my family and friends who also wanted to share the excitement,” Sims wrote in an e-mail to The Kentucky Standard. Correspondence with Sims about the internship had to be cleared through the White House. “Overall, I think we are all humbled by the opportunity and excited by the idea that our community is directly represented within the White House.”

Sims’ mother, Brenda Sims, said she hopes the internship will open up opportunities for Corey to work in politics.

“We were very thankful that he got it. It’s just such an area of interest for him. He is so in his element now it’s unbelievable. We just can’t hardly wrap words around this opportunity for him,” Brenda Sims said.

Corey Sims’ internship is the culmination of years of political interest and involvement. He started to tune in to politics during the 2000 election cycle, in which George W. Bush ran against Al Gore in the presidential election.

“The 2004 elections, however, began my exploration into government as a potential field of study. I wanted to serve my country in my own way, and I felt the most ideal method that I was comfortable with was through public service and giving back to my country,” Sims wrote.

As a child, Sims was interested in music, and performed with the Nelson County High School choir and band. The Nelson County community as a whole played a large role in Sims’ development, he said, but he pointed to the influence of his parents, David and Brenda Sims, and a few key teachers.

“My mother taught me compassion through her example, and my father instilled a work ethic that will live on forever,” Sims said. “I am grateful for all the teachers and administrators who contributed toward the path I’m on, but I would especially like to thank Mr. David Coffing and Mrs. Pat Berry. Their instruction both inside and outside of the classroom has contributed immensely toward the man I have become today.”

When he was 19, Sims moved to Orlando to take part in a Walt Disney World College Internship Program. He fell in love with central Florida, and enrolled in the University of Central Florida, where he earned his Bachelor’s in political sci-

Squirrel bites off more than it can chew

bbowman@kcn.com

Residents on Bartley Avenue had a temporary power outage 10:30 a.m. Sunday. The City of Bardstown Department of Public Works discovered the culprit was a squirrel.

Electric Superintendent Jeff Miller said it wasn’t hard to find the squirrel at the base of the pole after sustaining a 7,000 -volt shock.

“It had gotten into the transformer and blew the fuses,” Miller said. “It affected about 20 households on Bartley and probably parts of Kurtz.”

Electric lineman Eric Shelburne responded to the call. Two new fuses were re-energized and replaced. The outage lasted about an hour.

Devices are in place for wildlife protection but it doesn’t always stop them, Miller said.

“I keep putting signs up, but they (wildlife) just don’t read them.”

North Third Street accident

Medical transport was refused by all parties involved after two cars collided on North Third Street in Bardstown near Domino's about 3:40 p.m. Tuesday.

Variance allows construction at Jim Beam plant

ALEX WIMSATT
LANDMARK NEWS SERVICE

SHEPHERDSVILLE — The Bullitt County Board of Adjustments recently approved a variance that will allow Clermont's Jim Beam Distillery to move forward with plans to add on to its fermentation building.

During their February regular meeting, board members voted to allow Bardstown contractor Buzick Construction to encroach 8.63 feet into the property's required setback.

The applicant requested the variance so that the addition could be closer to Jim Beam's property line.

Jim Beam community relations director Jerry Summers explained to the board that the distillery is in the process of expanding and improving its facilities to enhance its visitors' experience.

Speaking on behalf of Jim Beam, Summers said the variance would allow the contractor to move ahead with expanding the distillery's fermentation building.

Summers added that Jim Beam's multi-million-dollar visitors' experience expansion would not only bring more visitors to the historic distillery, but would aid in tourism and economic development for all of Bullitt County.

Board member Glenn Booth made a motion to allow the variance. The board voted unanimously in favor of the motion.

Tips for doing well on the ACT

FRANKFORT — On March 6, juniors attending Kentucky public high schools will take the ACT, a national college entrance exam. The ACT assesses students' ability to perform college-level work. Scores may also qualify students for a bonus award through the Kentucky Educational Excellence Scholarship (KEES) program.

To do their best on the ACT, students should follow these tips from the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA), which administers the KEES program:

- Study, take notes and do your homework in your regular high school classes. Retain the information you learn rather than "dumping" it after the next test.
- Take practice tests. ACT offers sample tests at www.actstudent.org, and practice tests are included in the ACT booklet that school counselors receive each year. If those are not enough, larger practice books may be purchased at most bookstores.

- Take advantage of ACT prep classes. Many high schools and colleges offer such classes for free or for a small fee.

- Answer the questions you are most comfortable with first, then go back to tackle the others. Do not spend too much time on any one question.

- Remember that your first gut feeling is more often right than wrong.

- If you can eliminate one answer, you have a 1-in-3 chance of guessing the right answer. If you can eliminate two, you have a 50-50 chance. If you have no clue of the answer to a question, fill in any circle. The ACT does not count off for wrong answers, so guessing will not hurt your score.

- Make sure you get a good night's rest the night before and leave home early enough to get to the test site on time. Do not forget to bring some form of identification.

To learn how to plan and prepare for higher education, visit www.gotocollege.ky.gov. For more information about Kentucky scholarships and grants, visit www.kheaa.com; write KHEAA, P.O. Box 798, Frankfort, KY 40602; or call (800) 928-8926, ext. 6-7372.

Birthdays may be tricky for 'Leapers'

Yet she is celebrating her birthday — on the correct day — for only the 13th time today.

Wood, 52, is one of about 187,000 Americans now living who were born on Feb. 29 — known also as Leap Day. The birthday comes around every four years, thanks to a calendar devised in the days of Julius Caesar. A year is actually 365.24219 days — not 365 — and Leap Year takes care of the fractional days.

"I finally get to be a teenager," Wood said, with a laugh.

"I love my birthday," she added. "I play it for all it's worth. I tell Jimmy I'll take the gifts whenever — whether it's Feb. 28 or 29."

As she was growing up, she was unconcerned with the fact that she seldom celebrated her birthday on the correct day.

"It was always the last day of February, regardless," she said. "Mom always made me a chocolate cake with chocolate icing."

Wood said her mother, Opal Wells, a former cook for LaRue County Schools, made "the best" homemade icing but usually used a Swan's Down cake mix for the cake.

"I can remember the red box with a white swan on it," said Wood. "But the icing was homemade."

Her dad, O'Dell Wells, had reservations about her date of birth — at least at first.

"I recall Mom telling me that when she was going into labor, Dad didn't want her to do me that way," said Wood. "Having a birthday every four years But when a woman's in labor — forget it!"

These days, her ideal birthday includes spending time with family.

Their older son, Brian, works with Commercial Vehicle Enforcement out of the Elizabethtown Post. He and wife, Stephanie, have a son, A.J., 2, and a second child on the way.

Youngest son, Brandon, has been in the U.S. Navy for four years.

Wood, who has been employed at Nationwide Uniform for 25 years, said she has received some funny looks from people when she tells them what day she was born.

And the idea of Leap Year is sometimes novel to them.

"Once in a doctor's office, there was a young receptionist who looked at me and said 'how can that be? There's only 28 days in February,'" Wood said. Another employee convinced her that Wood was accurate.

A website, www.leapearaday.com provides dozens of stories about difficulties faced by "Leapers," from government agencies refusing to recognize their birth date to doctors who "corrected" birth certificates.

About 10,000 Leapers have joined the website to connect with others who celebrate their birthday on Feb. 29.

About Leap Year

The earth's year is 365.24219 days long. That's how long it takes the Earth to make one cycle around the sun, and through the seasons. We usually say 365 days make a year, just to simplify things.

Leap Year — which has 366 days with the addition of Feb. 29 — had its origin in 45 B.C. under the reign of Julius Caesar. He invented the Julian Calendar which tampered with the end of February, which at the time, was the last month of the year. The previous calendar had 355 days.

In 1582, Pope Gregory XIII invented the Gregorian Calendar. The end of the year was moved from Feb. 28 to Dec. 31 and Leap Year was reconfigured. Three Leap Days are omitted every 400 years.

The chance of being born on Leap Day is one out of 1,461.

There are about 187,000 people in the United States and 4 million people in the world who were born on Leap Day, according to About.com.

KSP accepting applications from high school seniors

The Kentucky State Police is now accepting applications from Kentucky high school seniors who are interested in qualifying for $1,000 scholarships that can be used for education expenses beginning in the fall of 2012. To be considered, students must complete and submit all application materials, which are available on the KSP website at www.kentuckyt-statepolice.org, by April 1, 2012. "The Trooper Island Scholarship Fund is an outgrowth of our summer camp for underprivileged children, which has been in operation for 45 years," said KSP Commissioner Rodney Brewer. "Although it is aimed at those who attended Trooper Island Camp as a youngster, the program is open to all graduating seniors in Kentucky who plan to attend a college or technical/vocational school this fall."

This is the second year that KSP has offered this financial aid. In 2011, Amber Nicole Turner of Barren County High School, and Devon Wharton of Trigg County High School, received a $1,000 scholarship each. See APPLICATIONS, page A8

ence with an emphasis in international relations in 2010. From there, he enrolled in Northeastern University's Masters of Public Administration program.

"I believe that public service is far more than an occupational category; it is better defined as an attitude, a sense of duty, or even a sense of public morality," he said.

The internship came to Sims' attention when his advisor, former Massachusetts governor and 1988 presidential candidate Michael Dukakis, said it might be a good fit.

"I am highly supportive of this Administration and worked very hard in 2008 on President Obama's campaign. I also wanted to be a part of the great work being done towards a more prosperous America, and there was no better way than going directly to the source," Sims said.

Corey Sims will continue his internship through May, coordinating responses to public mail in the Office of the First Lady and engaging in public service projects in Washington, D.C.

"I hope to learn as much as I can from some of the most respected and influential people our nation has to offer. I have met, and will meet, wonderful civil servants that can offer their experience and guidance for our intern class," he said.

Though Sims can't speak too specifically about what he's doing as part of his internship, what he can say is how much he enjoys it.

"He loves what he's doing. He loves the whole arena. He loves having to work 12 and 14 hours a day," Brenda Sims said.

Sims will graduate in May, and the next step, he hopes, will be a job in a state or federal department concerned with community development, after which he hopes to earn a doctorate in community sustainability.

"Once I've obtained my Ph.D., I'd like to teach at the collegiate level for a given period of time and eventually run for public office," he said.

Brenda Sims said she will support her son in any endeavor. For now, she's making sure to pay closer attention to politics herself.

"I do usually watch the State of the Union addresses just because he's my president, this is my country. But I really, really watched it, because I thought, the next day I'm going to be quizzed," she laughed.

For all his time looking ahead, Sims doesn't shy away from looking back — remembering those who helped him along his path, and sending well wishes for the next generation of Nelson County community members.

"I want to remind the youth of Nelson County to both study and work hard," he said. "Our world is drastically changing, and having a solid education will be an essential component towards individual success. The fine educators of Nelson County can provide the fundamentals needed to grow, but it is up to you to take it to the next step and actively participate in the learning process."

Red Cross campaign deserves local support

You heard the sirens and saw the smoke. You begin to think about the family. You pray that no one is inside or if they are, they get out in time. Then you think about the family's hardship. They've probably lost everything so now they have no home, no clothes and no food. You wonder how can I help? Hopefully you've already helped by donating to your local American Red Cross chapter that serves Nelson, Marion and Washington counties. Because your local American Red Cross Chapter was there to help the family in need with a warm bed, hot food and a change of clothes. They were there to help other families and neighbors in not just this emergency but many others as well.

Remember the ice storm of 2009 that hit Nelson and surrounding counties? Your local American Red Cross chapter set up an emergency shelter for those without power and fed nearly 8,000 meals to local residents. Or, remember May 2010, when flood waters in southern Nelson County forced many residents out of their homes? Your local American Red Cross chapter provided assistance to more than 30 families that spring.

Not to mention, the all important life - saving blood drives that the American Red Cross organizes throughout our region. In 2011 alone, 4,874 pints of blood at more than 180 drives was collected for those in need.

But all of this assistance comes at a cost and that's where you can help. The local American Red Cross chapter is running a local "grassroots" campaign for the first time and has set a fundraising goal of $15,000. "Heroes for the American Red Cross Campaign" has recruited local businesses, civic clubs, school and church groups along with individuals who have pledged to raise money for our local chapter. All the monies raised will help fund disaster relief, assistance for fire victims, emergency military communications, first aid and CPR training and disaster preparedness information for Nelson, Marion and Washington counties.

At the halfway point of the campaign, more than $11,000 had been committed but there's still work to be done in reaching the ultimate goal. And there's still time for you to be a "Hero" before disaster strikes our community again. Make a personal or business contribution to the local American Red Cross by either going online at www.nelson-countyredcross.org or you can mail a check to 321 S. Third St. Bardstown, KY 40004. OUR VIEWS

Are we becoming a miser nation?

A friend recently loaned me a newsletter/letter she had received from Sister of Mercy Betty Campbell, who has lived and served a long time (decades!) on our U.S. southern border with Mexico.

Her letter included updates on the major tribulations flowing from the enormous and terribly dangerous (50,000 lives lost) drug wars in that region. She went on to ponder the other dots in this problem. Among them, how mega big business is inflicting great damage on Earth, who "turn to profit the common good of all peoples and our beloved Earth."

She went on to reflect on the "parable about the miser who for being so focused on his treasure of gold was blind to everything else surely fits our corporate world, or at least those referred to as 'captains of industry.' They seem to live in an artificial world, so addicted to the bottom line that they can't see the disaster they are bringing on the world."

That focus as well as lack of life experience of suffering and economic poverty by so many of us does limit our understanding. That one of our U.S. Supreme Court justices could say that money would not necessarily corrupt our political process is but one indicator. (Columnist E.J. Dionne wryly noted, "they need to get out more...!")

SR. MARY SCHMUCK RSM

» GUEST COLUMNIST
schmuckrsm@scnazarethky.org

In our economic sphere of life — which is just one sphere, not all of life, let's remember: our "we can't afford it" response to a whole set of needs can indicate the risk of our movement into a sphere dangerous to our whole society.

Michael Jenkins, President of Louisville Seminary (Presbyterian), recently cited Carl T. Bogus' insights about the philosophies of William F. Buckley Jr. and Whittaker Chambers. He saw they agreed that "rampant individualism, self-scattered rejection of altruism, absolute faith in the power of the marketplace, and arrogance" as fundamental threats to society as a whole.

I feel for Mitt Romney trying to respond to being quoted out of context about concern for those who are poor — but how often so far has the word "poor" even crossed the lips of presidential candidates and our members of Congress?

There is currently a very animated debate about insurance plans in our evolving Affordable Care Act. I have listened to days of thoughtful analysis of the whole set of issues — freedom of religion, healthcare for women among them. A discussion item that after a short while chills my blood is that of "saving money" — by making it possible for women who are poor not to give birth. Carried very far, this becomes a genocide of persons who are poor?? Certainly it supports human life and dignity to foster good health of women, especially expectant mothers. What about the health of that growing life which if let be would become female (as well as male) children?

Years ago I heard a spokeswoman for a national organization note that it was cheaper to abort poor children than to have to pay for them after birth. Do we consider pregnancy a disease? Was Lenin right after all — we see ourselves primarily as economic units, economic benefit for some trumping all other values??

The ever haunting set of questions: who is benefiting? Losing? Making decisions? Getting unheard or left out of decision-making affecting them?

I also listen to concerns that we not develop world government or a socialist national one, that we carefully keep church and state separate in this country. From all I see there is a big(ger) need to keep away from mega business world government — more so if some of us succeed in shrinking the size of our national government to bathtub size. Who will gladly, in the name of efficiency and profit, step into the vacuum? Who is cultivating any spirit of miserliness among us?

My interest isn't normal; it's paranormal

In the past few weeks, I haven't had a ghost of a chance at being bored.

Yeah, that was a bad attempt at a paranormal-related pun.

You see, this has been a particularly busy time for paranormal events and other related activity. Since the end of January, stars from three national TV shows — including one for which I was interviewed on-camera — have visited downtown Elizabethtown, and last weekend I was part of an investigation near Louisville with a paranormal investigation group I recently joined — yep, that makes two now.

That has made for a busy schedule, since I got to participate in all the events in one capacity or another. Truth is, I've enjoyed the respite from my usual routine.

And maybe it isn't really that big a respite.

Even though investigating reputedly haunted locations and listening for disembodied voices on recording devices isn't everyone's

ROBERT VILLANUEVA

» GUEST COLUMNIST
rvillanueva@thenewsenterprise.com

thing, I've always been fascinated by the subject in general.

Paranormal investigation is just a logical progression of my interest.

But it's not what some might think.

This is not "Scooby-Doo" or "Ghostbusters." Though having a sweet van like the Mystery Machine or a converted ambulance like Dr. Peter Venkman and his gang would be kind of cool for one or both of the paranormal groups I belong to.

Just saying.

Investigations involve a lot of setting up equipment, sitting in the dark and reviewing hours of audio and video. Though checking out claims is one aspect of investigations, it is just as much a part of the investigation, if not more, to see if there can be other logical explanations for the claims, debunking them.

And it isn't considered evidence if someone simply says they feel frightened in a certain spot, claims to see, hear or feel something, or relates tales about previous incidents or deaths in a location. Evidence has to be something captured on audio or video or other devices that can't be debunked.

Sometimes we find no evidence to support a supposed haunting. That doesn't necessarily mean the place hasn't had paranormal activity; it just means we didn't capture any evidence.

Sometimes we're surprised at our findings when it seems an investigation produced nothing, only to discover on a recorder a voice belonging to no one present at the time of recording.

And sometimes the things that happen border so much on ambiguity that it can be frustrating. But interestingly so.

Sure, I know not everyone believes in this stuff. And like most paranormal investigators I know, I'm not out to convince anyone.

What I am out to do is add whatever I can to the field of study and find whatever answers I can for myself and others.

A lot of commitment is required to pursue this interest, and that's always a concern. So far I've done OK working my interest into my schedule.

There are slow times and busier times like the past few weeks.

I welcome either.

I guess you can say I've gotten into the spirit of paranormal investigations.

Yeah, you knew I had to go there.

>>>GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Senate Bill will restrict appropriation FRANKFORT — After a pause for Presidents' Day, the Legislature moved into the second half of the 2012 General Assembly Session. I had visits from groups representing adult day health care providers and developmental disabilities. Many Boy Scout troops came to Frankfort for the annual Boy Scout Day at the Capitol. It was a pleasure to see these civic-minded boys and young men and their dedicated troop leaders and parents.

Of the bills on which we focused this week, two were of particularly high profile. Senate Bill 1 would restrict the legislature to appropriating no more than 6 percent of General Fund revenues to bonded indebtedness. This is a level generally accepted as the standard by bond rating agencies, as well as a threshold the legislature has historically attempted to operate within. As long as I have been a member, the Senate has always passed a budget with less debt than either the Governor's or the House's proposals. We cannot continue paying off the Visa with the MasterCard. I voted for the bill because setting the limit in statute will provide an additional safeguard against high debt levels in the future, as well as make it easier to prioritize critical programs and services when determining budget allocations.

The measure excludes debt for universities, the Kentucky Housing Authority, and other agencies using funds outside the

JIMMY HIGDON
STATE SENATOR
14th District

General Fund, including the stand-alone Road Fund. It also contains a provision allowing the General Assembly to exceed the cap by a majority vote if the Governor declares a state of emergency that would require additional funds. Senate Bill 1 will now go to members of the House for their consideration.

Finally this week, a bill that would have placed on the November ballot for voter approval a constitutional amendment authorizing casino gambling in Kentucky was defeated 21-16. I fulfilled my commitment to my district by voting to let the people decide on this issue.

Small group sessions continue studying the budget. We are waiting for members of the House to take action on the budget as they are constitutionally required to do first. But their apparent delay has not stopped the Senate from looking closely at what the Administration is requesting.

Even though there are less than 30 working days left in this legislative session, there is still plenty of time to get involved and have your voice heard on the issues that matter to you. I encourage you to contact me with your thoughts and concerns.

>>>READERS' VIEWS

Separation of church and insurance

To the editor:

By now, many of us are familiar with the Obama administration's Jan. 20 Health and Human Services health insurance directive, requiring practically all employers who offer insurance to their employees to pay for abortion and other contraceptive services. This means that Catholic, Protestant, and other religious (or morally disagreeing) employers will be forced, against their consciences, to fund procedures which they deem wrong. The President's so-called compromise, intended to assuage Americans who object to defying their consciences and Constitution, is nothing more than a slap in the face to opponents of the new mandate: he has now demanded that insurance companies which provide insurance for these religious and otherwise dissenting employers must pay for abortions, morning-after drugs, sterilizations, etc. This is merely a slithering game of semantics: employers will still be paying for services which they oppose, because employers pay insurance companies.

This unconstitutional mandate hails from the same administration that shoved Obamacare on the unwilling American public in a truly scurrilous fashion. More unwanted surprises of this nature are ahead, as the 2,000+ pages of regulation that compose Barack Obama's socialist health-care plan are implemented in coming months, including a rising tide of taxes and bureaucracy — much of it conveniently timed to be implemented after the 2012 elections.

President Obama is clearly bent on bucking our Constitution and the principles that have made our country great. He would do well to review history, and remember that this country was founded so that people might practice their religious faith freely. Our founding fathers deeply valued this right and codified it in our Constitution.

For a President who has seemed to pride himself on "separation of church and state," actions like this HHS mandate show that he is far too interested in controlling church and state. This is socialism at its strong-arming finest.

The Christians of ancient Rome went head-to-head with the empire when they refused to put Caesar before God. Sadly, it seems that we are coming to such dire extremes in this country. For now, however, we still have a tentative democratic republic; and this wretched and unlawful mandate will ultimately be appealed as Obamacare is brought before the Supreme Court later this year. By the grace of God, it will be struck down.

If you value your Constitutional freedom of religion, remember this tyrannical and unjust mandate when you go to the polls in November.

Mayor doesn't understand his position

To the editor:

I am a retired Jefferson County Police officer with 27 years of service. I also served as a trustee on the board of trustees with the Oklahoma Fire District for 12 years. I am not an attorney and don't claim to be, but I believe the mayor has gone beyond his scope of authority when he fired one fire chief and hired another one. The mayor claims the fire department is set up on Chapter 273 of Kentucky law which pertains to religious charitable and educational societies. He also claims it was set up under Chapter 75 of Kentucky state law. Apparently the mayor needs to read Chapter 75. It gives no authority to the mayor but to the County Judge with limited powers. The judge is authorized to appoint three members to the board of trustees. Two members of the Department are voted on by the members of the department and two are voted to the board of trustees by the property owners. Once the board is set up it has complete control of the fire department. The members of the board then select a chairman and the board then appoints a chief. And hires and fires the members of the department.

I also have a copy of the incorporation of the Bardstown and Nelson County Fire Department which is not worth the paper on which it is written as Kentucky law does not permit the forming of a corporation to collect taxes. Therefore, any ordinance the mayor may have passed will have no force of law as far as the fire department is concerned.

It looks like the City of Bardstown has another Obama on its hands in how he runs his administration. He thinks he can do what he chooses to do whether the law permits it or no. I suggest the county judge tell the mayor to go back to selling cars and to quit passing ordinances that aren't worth the paper on which they are written.

State offers several student financial aid programs

Kentucky students who choose to attend an in-state college or technical school may qualify for financial aid programs administered by the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA).

Kentucky's need-based programs include the College Access Program (CAP) Grant and Kentucky Tuition Grant (KTG). CAP grants may be used at all of Kentucky's public and private colleges. KTG awards may be used at Kentucky's private colleges. Students may apply for the CAP and KTG programs by completing the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) online at www.fafsa.gov.

Perhaps the best known program is the merit-based Kentucky Educational Excellence Scholarship (KEES). Students attending certified Kentucky high schools earn college scholarships based on their yearly grade-point average and their best ACT score. High school students who qualify for the free or reduced-price lunch programs may also earn additional KEES money by scoring well on Advanced Placement or International Baccalaureate exams. Home school and GED graduates may earn KEES awards based on their ACT scores.

Students do not need to apply for a KEES award. If they attend a participating Kentucky college, KHEAA will automatically send the scholarship money to the college after the school reports that the student is attending classes.

KEES, CAP and KTG are funded by Kentucky Lottery revenues.

KHEAA also administers the Osteopathic Medicine Scholarship, the Coal County Scholarship for Pharmacy Students and the Early Childhood Development Scholarship. Students may apply online for these scholarships through Zip Access on www.kheaa.com.

To find links to other useful education websites, go to www.gotocollege.ky.gov. For more information about Kentucky scholarships and grants, visit www.kheaa.com; write KHEAA, P.O. Box 798, Frankfort, KY 40602; or call 800-928-8926, ext. 6-7372.

A college education is within your reach

FRANKFORT — Although many Kentucky students and parents may think a college education is financially out of reach, that isn't necessarily the case, according to the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA).

Student financial aid programs are available to help pay for college. Financial aid comes in many forms — scholarships, grants, work-study programs and loans — and most students will qualify for more than one type of assistance.

By working with their school counselor and the college financial aid office, students may find that higher education is more affordable than they believed.

All students interested in college should file the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) at www.fafsa.gov. The FAFSA determines the amount of federal and state aid for which they qualify.

Students should also search for scholarships for which they may qualify. Not all scholarships are based on grades or athletic ability. Some are for students from particular areas, for those interested in certain fields or for students from specific backgrounds. A good place to start is Affording Higher Education, a KHEAA resource book available in school counseling offices and public libraries. Also check out the Paying for College section on www.kheaa.com, which has a link to a free scholarship search engine.

With some research and by working with financial aid professionals, students and parents may find that a college education is well within their reach.

To learn how to plan and prepare for higher education, go to www.gotocollege.ky.gov. For more information about Kentucky scholarships and grants, visit www.kheaa.com; write KHEAA, P.O. Box 798, Frankfort, KY 40602; or call (800) 928-8926, ext. 6-7372.

Local artist to exhibit at Kentucky Crafted: The Market

Matthew Gaddie, a lifelong Nelson County resident, is preparing to exhibit at Kentucky Crafted: The Market at the Kentucky Lexington Convention Center, March 1-4. This award-winning event, produced by the Kentucky Arts Council, attracts buyers throughout the nation. It brings together more than 150 exhibitors of contemporary and traditional art and craft, books, music and artisan food products.

Gaddie has been invited to participate in the show to market his wood-fired pottery after meeting the artistic excellence criteria established by the Kentucky Arts Council's Kentucky Crafted program. Gaddie began his business — the Meadows Pottery Studio and Gallery — in 2004 and has participated in this exciting market for several years.

In 2011, the Kentucky Arts Council named Gaddie as one of four Kentucky Emerging Artists. He has also met all the requirements to participate in the "Kentucky Proud" program.

"The Market continues to be an exciting venue for selling to both retailers and the public and is a significant source of business for me," Gaddie said. He hopes that people will come out and support all Kentucky artists.

illness.

Hines told the court he is taking his prescribed medication and has "gotten better."

The court conducted competency hearings before scheduling the trial.

Hines spent a month at the Kentucky Correctional Psychiatric Center in LaGrange being evaluated.

Dr. Amy Trivette, a psychiatrist from the center, described Hines as possessing a "maladaptive way of interacting with the world" and struggling with self-identity, symptoms of personality disorder but not a specific classification of that mental illness. He also reported suicidal thoughts and had a history of alcohol abuse, she testified during a September hearing.

Judge Easton, who found Hines fit to stand trial, said there was no reason to question Hines' competency at this time.

>> Chase

Rick McCubbin said, "and when he went to pull the truck over, the chase was on."

The chase led officers through Nelson, Washington and Marion counties before ending in Taylor County.

Medley's report states he stopped the vehicle near the ballpark on KY 49, but when he was about to get out of his cruiser, the driver took off back toward McDonald's and turned right onto KY 150.

Near Wal-Mart, Nelson County Sheriff's Department Sgt. Ed Mattingly fell in behind Medley's car, and by the time the vehicle turned right onto Manton Road and headed into Holy Cross, Officers Andrew Riley and David Culler, along with a Marion County sheriff's deputy, had also joined in the pursuit, according to the report.

The Chevy Blazer reportedly popped out from behind a Holy Cross store, leading officers into Taylor County.

"He was definitely speeding the whole time," McCubbin said. During the chase, officers from other jurisdictions joined in to help, he said. It is the department's policy to pursue vehicles when it's safe to do so, but not to set up roadblocks because of the danger involved, he explained.

The Chevy Blazer apparently "became disabled" during the pursuit, Medley's report stated, and the male driver ran from Owl Creek Road toward a wooded area. "He bailed out and ran down through a creek, and that's where they lost him," McCubbin said.

Niemann, however, was left behind in the vehicle and did not try to flee.

She was arrested at about 3:02 a.m. and charged with five counts of complicity to first-degree wanton endangerment (police officer), complicity to first-degree fleeing or evading police (motor vehicle), possession of marijuana and alcohol intoxication.

A small baggy of marijuana was allegedly found in Niemann's purse.

Police were unable to offer any description of the driver other than the fact he was male.

"Unfortunately we don't have him in custody. We have no idea who that is at this point," McCubbin said Monday morning. "We have some suspicions."

Niemann is "being about half cooperative with us" in the investigation of the case, McCubbin alleged.

Compounding the difficulty of identifying the driver is that the SUV is registered to a woman who was not in the vehicle during the chase. The owner of the vehicle and Niemann apparently knew each other. McCubbin said police believe the Chevy Blazer left that night from a Loretto bar.

"The owner of the vehicle is saying that she knows that her friend — the other female — left with a male,"

McCubbin said. "She's telling us, anyway, she's not sure who was driving her own vehicle."

Niemann allegedly told police the driver said there was an escape warrant issued on him.

Campbellsville Police also assisted in the arrest, McCubbin said.

The chase was roughly 40 miles long, according to a Google Maps estimate.

BOYS' 5TH REGION
TOURNAMENT

Eagles face Bulldogs

Tigers in action Thursday

PETER W. ZUBATY
pzubaty@kystandard.com

Bardstown and Bethlehem received their assignments Sunday morning for the 5th Region tournament, which starts today at Central Hardin, and in both cases, local schools are going to have to study up on the 17th District.

Bethlehem (22-5) hits the court Wednesday night, and its obstacle at 8 p.m. is John Hardin (19-8). The teams did not face each other in the regular season.

Up first at 6 p.m. Wednesday is LaRue County (22-7) against Taylor County (16-13).

On Thursday, things get started with a potential thriller as Bardstown (23-9) and North Hardin (12-17) face off for the second time this season.

Undercut by injuries and suspensions for much of the season, the Trojans are at full strength now and as hot as anybody in the state, having won nine straight until Saturday's loss to John Hardin in the 17th District championship. One of those wins was a 65-52 decision a week ago. The Tigers also drew a 17th District opponent last season, topping John Hardin 62-57 in an exciting first-round game last year.

"I feel good about the draw," Bardstown coach James "Boo" Brewer said. "It's basically the same draw as last year. North Hardin is a great team, but so are we, though. Playing them recently was good for us."

Marion County (19-11) and Green County (8-22) round out play at 8 p.m. Thursday.

The semifinals are at 6 and 8 p.m. March 5, with the championship at 7 p.m. March 6.

Bethlehem coach Artie Braden said John Hardin's size creates bad matchups for his team, and he also said that Bulldog coach Mark Wells and he weren't in good graces any longer.

"We had agreed not to meet until the finals," Braden, the former John Hardin coach, joked about Wells, his longtime assistant. "We're not talking right now."

Cost is $7 per session.

Bardstown's Anthony Myrks engineered a devastating 13-0 third-quarter run, lifting his team from behind to in control in a 53-41 win over Bethlehem in Saturday's 19th District championship.

"It feels really good knowing we won our last game on this court," Myrks said.

It was the third win of the year in four tries over the Eagles as the Tigers improved to 23-9 on the season going into the boys' 5th Region tournament, which gets under way today at Central Hardin (see story).

Bethlehem fell to 22-5 overall. Bardstown is defending region champ, while Bethlehem advanced to the region semifinals last year.

Bardstown built a short cushion early on behind a hot start by Devonte Grundy, who led all scorers with 13, but Bethlehem eventually battled back and cut the

Cards can't match Trojans' physicality

DENNIS GEORGE
Contributing Writer

When his team trailed Nelson County by only a single point at the half after what he considered a subpar performance, North Hardin coach Chris Corder felt pretty good about his team's chances for a win in the opening round of the 5th Region tournament on Monday.

When his team scored the first four points of the second half to stretch an 18-17 advantage to 22-17, Nelson County coach Kelly Wood felt pretty good about his team's chances for a win in the opening round of the 5th Region tournament on Monday.

It seems that Corder had the better intuition.

His Trojans only managed just two fourth quarter field goals but managed to connect on 12 of its 21 free throw attempts en route to a 51-46 win at Central Hardin High School.

North Hardin outscored the Cardinals 19-9 from the free throw line in a game that both coaches described as very physical.

"This may have been the most physical game that I've been a part of in all of the years that I have coached," Wood said. "I'm not blaming the officials, but we just couldn't adjust and panicked."

Corder, a former boys' assistant coach to longtime North Hardin coach Ron Bevars, admitted that the type of play played to his team's advantage.

"The 6th and 7th region officials tend to let you play more and we were hoping they would do that tonight. We tend to foul a lot and we were able to play aggressive defensively."

It was an early charging call on Shelby Maupin that stymied some of Nelson County's early momentum. She scored her team's first five points but was whistled for her second foul with two minutes left in the opening period. The charging call nullified a basket that would have given the Cardinals a 9-2 lead.

"We were called for four charges tonight, and I don't think we've been called for four charges all year," Wood said.

Nelson County managed to hold onto the lead throughout the half. Cierra Drake scored all six of her team's second quarter points. North Hardin did manage to pull to within one point at the break as Brianna Woodson scored six of her 18 points in the quarter.

"I told our kids at the half that we couldn't play any worse than we did in the first half," said Corder. "We missed several shots that we should have made. We just got more aggressive in the second half."

Nelson led 24-20 when Allysa Johnston hit an inside bucket midway through the third period.

North Hardin went on a 14-1 run over the next four minutes to take control of the game. That run included back-to-back threes by Woodson that turned a 24-22 deficit into a 28-

OUTDOOR TALES

Sucker fishing fun, tasty eating

Sure, you can catch fish anytime of the year, even through the ice. However, some times are better than others, and some certainly are more pleasant than others.

Spring kicks off fishing season for most folks, and one sign of spring is sucker fishing. Yes, there is a sucker fish. (Not talking about fishermen who buy far too many fancy lures.)

Sauger fishing is slowing. Crappie and bass can be taken early, but their numbers usually don't pick up until later in the spring.

As a kid growing up in Central Illinois, our fishing spots were limited. They mostly were creeks, and suckers were always the first target of the season.

Many anglers today never have tried their luck fishing for suckers. They're not just fun to catch, they are good eating, if you can avoid their many tiny bones.

There are approximately 80 species of suckers. The ones I'm most familiar with we always referred to as white suckers. As a kid growing up, my dad purchased quillback and river redhorse suckers from commercial fishermen, who caught them in the Wabash River and small streams leading to it near Darwin, Ill.

The quillback and redhorse seemed to be larger than the white suckers and the bones didn't seem to be as much of a problem when cooking and eating.

The spring spawning runs of suckers from larger streams or lakes into small streams marked a signal that fishing season was once again underway.

"When the dogwood blooms, the suckers are on the riffles," is an old saying about sucker fishing. In early spring about the time dogwood trees bloom, suckers move upstream from lakes or deeper water onto gravel riffles in the streams to spawn. It's one of the best times to catch these bottom-feeding fish.

Sucker fishing is fun, and with proper preparation, suckers can be mighty tasty. And suckers, especially white suckers, can be found in streams and lakes throughout the Midwest as well as in some other parts of the country.

White suckers are fighters, especially during spring spawn runs, when they congregate in streams. Suckers from lakes try to make their way into streams feeding the lakes. They travel to the streams to spawn. That's when they are most easily caught.

Suckers are bottom-feeders and primarily eat invertebrates such as insect larvae, scuds and crayfish, and they can be caught on a variety of worms. They can be landed by using most any tackle from cane pole to spinning outfit to flyrod.

Although I could never do it, old-timers used snares made of piano wire to catch the wily fish. They would lean from behind a log or a ledge over a sucker hole, loop the wire over the fish, and then pull the wire tight to Start some indoor plants while you wait for spring

I am plotting and planning and placing orders for onion sets and seed potatoes and summer crops that will be directly seeded in the garden once the temperatures really warm ... I can barely stand the wait! I have two trays of seedlings that I started about two weeks ago and have begun another round of kale, broccoli and Brussels sprouts in three more trays.

My set-up is not elaborate; it basically consists of a kit that includes a plastic dome that fits over a seed tray and pan. You can craft your own using shallow containers (or a shallow flat with drainage holes, like you would get if you bought a flat of pansies), fill the flat with sterile growing medium such as a 50-50 mix of vermiculite and peat moss, and then top it off with some clear plastic. Of course, you need to plant some seed at some point.

Moisten your germinating mix in a bucket before filling your flat; then take a pencil and make several shallow furrows in the mix; drop your seeds in (check planting depth on the seed packet, some seeds need light to germinate so you do not want to cover them with your germinating mixture); gently moisten again with your spray bottle and cover with a plastic hood or homemade tent (if you prefer the homemade version use popsicle sticks to support your tent). Plug in your heated mat if included, germination really does benefit from some bottom warmth.

The plastic covering increases the relative humidity and moderates the soil moisture as the seeds germinate. Open the tent daily to see if more moisture is needed, mist accordingly using your spray bottle. Consistency is necessary for moisture and warmth.

Seeds need varying degrees of warmth to germinate so for cool season crops you may not need any more heat than what a sunny window or some grow lights will provide. Summer crops will benefit from an additional source such as a heating mat. You don't want to cook your seeds; just keep them on the warm side. It is not ideal to put them by a heat register or refrigerator because this is an inconsistent source of warmth and dries out the seedlings.

If your tray is in a bright window you will need to rotate the tray daily once the seedling emerge; grow lights overhead are ideal because the seedlings grow stout and straight.

Once your seedlings emerge remove the covering and begin to water the tray from the bottom to maintain even moisture (not soggy). Once the second set of true leaves form (those that are the shape that you associate with the plant) your adolescent seedlings are ready to be transplanted into their own pot containing transplant mix; you can use small pots left over from store-bought plants. Once they are transplanted, return them to their light source (if they are in a window give them a quarter turn every day so they grow straight). Continue to water your transplants from the bottom when needed, adding some diluted fish emulsion fertilizer once a week.

When conditions are right for your particular plant (check the seed package for details) acclimate them to the outdoors before planting them in the garden. Put them outside in the shade first, gradually moving them into the sunlight; they will be ready to plant in the garden in about a week.

Berry Center Partners with SCC to offer ag degree program

The Berry Center of New Castle, Ky. and St. Catharine College jointly announced an agreement and partnership to provide a vital, interdisciplinary degree program in farming and ecological agrarianism. The program will embed academic coursework with fieldwork and immersion experiences, using nature as the standard, in an effort to bring awareness, knowledge and cohesiveness to students interested in farming, rural communities, local economies, agriculture, geographical sustainability, and stewardship for the land.

The St. Catharine College campus is just outside Springfield and is situated amidst well-tended farms in the geographical center of the state. The College continues to grow and it will soon see the completion of its new Emily W. Hundley Library and Center for Graduate Studies. The Library will not only provide students with the most current advances in information technology, but starting with writings that have inspired the work of Wendell Berry, it will seek to provide the most complete agricultural collection in the state.

William D. Huston, President of St. Catharine College, was extremely enthusiastic about what this partnership will mean for the students of St. Catharine, as well as for the future of Kentucky, the nation, and potentially the world. According to Huston, "The work that The Berry Center is doing in collecting and archiving the papers of the Berry family, coupled with our collaboration with them as we develop this program and other offerings, will enable students to learn from the past in order to shape the future. St. Catharine College continually strives to stand among the foremost private colleges in the country known for innovative academic and student development programs, the spirited loyalty of our alumni, and the contribution of our graduates to society. This partnership with The Berry Center, Wendell Berry and his family takes us a long way in achieving these goals."

The Berry Center continues the passion of Kentucky author Wendell Berry, his father, John M. Berry Sr., a lawyer, farmer and co-author of the Burley Tobacco Program, his brother, John M. Berry Jr., lawyer, state senator and farmer and the lifelong focus they have placed on conservation, farming, and the economic and human health of local communities. Thus, the partnership between The Berry Center and St. Catharine College is a natural fit.

According to Mary Berry Smith, the daughter of Wendell Berry and executive director of The Berry Center, "It is our intention to bring awareness and solutions to the issues confronting farming families in Kentucky and around the country. This degree program will ultimately bring cohesiveness and focus to issues of land use, farm policy, and local food infrastructure. We want to offer a solid farming education for our rural students who hope to continue farming or establish new family farms. And the interdisciplinary nature of this program will provide a meaningful education to anyone concerned with stewardship for the land. We are establishing this partnership with St. Catharine College in order to empower students to create a healthy and sustainable agricultural enterprise in our state and the nation."

St. Catharine College serves as Kentucky's only Dominican College. Embedded within the mission, vision and ethos of the College are the Four Pillars of Dominican Life, which promote Prayer, Study, Ministry, and Community as the means to engender mutual respect, care and concern for each other, all life and the Earth. Such stewardship is actually the most sincere form of love. And according to Wendell Berry, "We must love. And we must love what we do. So we should always ask, 'What works does this love propose?' St. Catharine College and The Berry Center want to begin to answer that question with this partnership."

It should be noted that Wendell Berry has just been named the 41st Jefferson Lecturer in Humanities. The annual lecture, sponsored by the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH), is the most prestigious honor the federal government bestows for distinguished intellectual achievement in the humanities. Berry will present the 41st Jefferson Lecture in the Humanities at 7:30 p.m. Monday, April 23, at The John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C. In the lecture, "It All Turns on Affection," Berry will discuss man's interaction with nature, as depicted in history, philosophy and literature.

For more information on the partnership between The Berry Center and St.

Catharine College, or the degree program, contact Mary Berry Smith, Executive Director of The Berry Center at 502-845-9200 or Dr. Don Giles, Vice President for Academic Affairs at St. Catharine College, at (859)336-5082.

Free weight loss surgery seminar set for March 6

Severe obesity is a chronic condition that can be mad-deningly hard to treat through diet and exercise alone. Bariatric (weight-loss) surgery can be an option for those who are severely obese and cannot lose weight by traditional means, or who suffer from serious obesity-related health-problems. The surgery promotes weight loss and reduces the risk of developing type 2 diabetes, for example, by restricting food intake, and, in some operations, by interrupting the digestive process to prevent the absorption of some calories and nutrients.

Recent studies suggest that bariatric surgery may even have a favorable impact on mortality (death) rates in severely obese patients. The best results are achieved when bariatric surgery is followed with healthy eating behaviors and regular physical activity. In other words, a single surgery won't fix your problem. It takes a single surgery, and then a life-long commitment to your health, to get to your goal of being a healthy person.

At Flaget's Center for Weight Loss Surgery, Bariatric and General Surgeon Dr. Rob Farrell performs three types of bariatric surgery: the adjustable gastric band surgical procedure, known as the lap band; the roux-en-y gastric bypass surgical procedure; and the laparoscopic sleeve gastrectomy. Farrell will discuss all three options at a 6 p.m.

seminar Tuesday, March 6 at Flaget Hospital. To register for the free event, call 350-5492.

The adjustable gastric band surgical procedure involves placing an adjustable band around the upper stomach, which limits the amount of food you can eat at one time. It does not involve rearrangement of the intestinal tract, which avoids the risk of bowel reconections and malabsorption. In general, it is a simpler, quicker and safer operation compared to gastric bypass. However, it does require periodic adjustments to tighten the band.

The roux-en-y gastric bypass surgical procedure is restrictive (the size of the stomach is altered) and mal-absorptive (the length of the small intestine, which absorbs food) is decreased. The first step of the operation is to create the gastric pouch by dividing and separating a small portion of the upper stomach from the rest of the stomach. The gastric pouch is your new stomach, and is approximately the size of a golf ball. When you eat, the pouch will fill up quickly, creating a feeling of fullness. The remainder of the stomach ("remnant") is left in your body, and it continues to make gastric juices. However, it will never be exposed to food again.

The gastric sleeve surgical procedure is restrictive. The bariatric surgeon removes about 60 percent of the stomach by creating a tube out of the stomach using staples. The result is a small-sized stomach, which takes the shape of a sleeve or a banana. A hormone produced in the stomach — ghrelin — makes people hungry, slows metabolism, and decreases the body's ability to burn fat. The non-production of this hunger-related hormone results in preventing an increase in appetite.

The free seminar will cover a great deal more about the surgeries, and about the tremendous support that is available to you from Farrell and his staff before, during and after whichever operation you choose. Monthly support groups are included in the care. To learn more about this comprehensive weight-loss program, make sure to attend the seminar.

Flaget now provides latest in stereotactic breast biopsies

Flaget Memorial Hospital is now offering women faced with a suspicious-looking mammogram or small breast lump a less-invasive breast biopsy that keeps women out of the operating room and avoids the stitches and scarring associated with a traditional open surgical biopsy.

Dr. Richard Scaff, a radiologist with Central Kentucky Radiology, the physicians' group that reads imaging studies at Flaget, is one of the physicians performing the stereotactic breast biopsy (SBB) at Flaget.

"There is a specific table we use to perform the procedure, and the patient would be placed face-down on that table," Scaff said. "There's a hole in the table, and her breast would go through that hole. It would be compressed as it would be for a mammogram. The mammographic abnormality, whether it be a mass or calci-fications, is then identified."

"We take several pictures along the way," the radiologist said. "We give the patient local anesthesia, and then we make a tiny incision in the skin, not enough for a stitch, just big enough to insert the needle. A vacuum device obtains the specimens, which are then sent to pathology."

At the end of the procedure, the radiologists routinely place a tiny metal clip the size of the end of a ball-point pen in the breast, Scaff said. "That way if the patient required surgery or additional treatment, this marker allows the surgeon to go back to the exact location where the SBB was done." The benefits of SBB are many, the physician said: It's less invasive than a surgical biopsy; patients don't have to go under general anesthesia, so they don't face that risk; they have a much shorter recuperation time, and lit-

Nelson County residents named to Bluegrass Community & Technical College Dean's List

Several Nelson County students achieved Dean's List honors for the 2011 fall semester at Bluegrass Community & Technical College. The college recognizes academic excellence by naming to the Dean's List full-time students who have earned an overall semester grade-point average of 3.5 or better in courses numbered 100 or above. BCTC's Dean's List honorees for fall 2011 include: Damien Ballard, Darrell Bolin, Lauren Downs

Jordan Edelen, Erica Hayse, Shaniqua Livers, Megan Monin, Eileen Peterson, Nicholas Rapier, Sandra Scroggum, Kiara Stivers, Haley Willett

Local student named to Georgetown Dean's List

Katherine Nicole Rapier was named to the Dean's List for the fall semester at Georgetown College. The Dean's List at Georgetown College is composed of students who have earned a term grade-point average of 3.7 or above in at least 12 graded credit hours. Katie is the daughter of Dana and Jim Whitis and Ken and Susan Rapier, Bardstown. She is the granddaughter of Kenny and Pat Crowe and Norma Rapier, all of Bardstown, and the great-granddaughter of Faye Osborne, also of Bardstown.

SCC senior serves as intern in Frankfort

Each weekday morning, Keana Crockett, a senior at St. Catharine College, begins a 114-mile daily roundtrip between her home in Bardstown and Frankfort to participate in a learning experience not typically offered to her on campus. This semester, her classrooms are the hallways, committee rooms and other environs of the Kentucky General Assembly, where Crockett is a full-time legislative intern for State Rep. Linda Belcher, a Democrat from Shepherdsville.

Keana Crockett

save me a lot of time," said Belcher. Crockett, a St. Catharine senior management and human relations major, said her internship has helped her grow professionally. "This is an awesome experience. I'm learning how to carry myself professionally. It's not like sitting in a classroom (and hearing about human relations). I'm doing it," she said.

Motives vary for seeking the legislative internships, but networking, or contact building, is usually among them. "You do make so many connections," added Crockett. "I've been here for (nearly six) weeks now and I've met so many different people, and I'm already seeing if I can get a job here."

If she succeeds, Crockett won't be the first intern to parlay a Frankfort semester into a public sector job. Former interns include State Sen. Tim Shaughnessy, Franklin Circuit Judge Phillip Shepherd, Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) member Mike Duncan and Carol Palmore, a top official in four different state administrations. Palmore first came to Frankfort in 1970 as a college intern; an experience she says changed her life. "The extremely positive experiences I had as an intern were the deciding factors in my career choice in public service," said Palmore, an attorney.

BMS Academic Team

Butler named Presidential Scholars candidate

Bobby Butler, a senior at Bardstown High School, has been named one of more than 3,000 candidates in the 2012 U.S. Presidential Scholars Program. The candidates were selected from nearly 3.2 million students expected to graduate from U.S. high schools in 2012. Butler is the son of Robert and Ann Butler.

Inclusion in the U.S. Presidential Scholars Program, now in its 48th year, is one of the highest honors bestowed upon graduating high school seniors. Seniors are selected on the basis of superior academic and artistic achievements, leadership qualities, strong character and involvement in community and school activities.

The 3,000 candidates were selected for their exceptional performance on either the College Board SAT or the ACT Assessment. In addition, each Chief State School Officer was invited to nominate one male and one female candidate, based on their outstanding scholarship, residing in the CSSO's jurisdiction. Further consideration is based on students' essays, self-assessments, descriptions of activities, school recommendations, and school transcripts. A distinguished panel of educators will review these submissions and select 500 semifinalists in early April.

The Commission on Presidential Scholars, a group of 32 eminent citizens appointed by the President, will make final selection of the Scholars. They will select one young man and one young woman from each state, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and U.S. students living abroad; 15 students at-large; and up to 20 students from the creative and performing arts. The U.S. Department of Education will announce the Scholars in May.

»» MOVIE REVIEW

I'm sure it seemed a great idea, full of Navy propaganda, after a squad of SEALs killed Osama bin Laden. Let's make a movie starring real servicemen — trained U.S. military experts who do this for a living to protect U.S. citizens. "Act of Valor" is an exciting re-creation of what is probably a typical SEAL operation — Go into enemy territory and extract one of our own.

There's only one problem: What if those Navy personnel aren't great actors? The hope that the action will overpower the lack of acting ability? There's also a problem with that. Let's use an example of a film placed in World War II: "Inglourious Bastards." The bad guy is the German officer, played by Christoph Walz, who was chasing this squad of Nazi killers, led by Brad Pitt. Walz won an Academy Award for the portrayal. Yes, he was good, so good that at times because of his on-screen charisma, we forgot that he was the villain. And that's not good.

In this film the non-SEALs are more believable than the good guys. Fortunately, not many scenes

'Act of Valor'

Thrilling action — not so much the acting require their acting. These guys are better when left to do what they are trained to do — neutralize the enemy and rescue friends. If you judge this movie on how much you pull for these guys, you'll give it a better rating than I did. I fully dug the feel-good atmosphere here and was for the SEALs 100 percent. However, it lacked many positive traits of a good movie. That doesn't make me un-American. Technically, the surround sound really put us into the scene with the SEALs.

Family Rating: R for strong violence including some torture, and for language. Not starring anyone you know. Directed by Mike McCoy and Scott Waugh, with assistance of Tom Clancy. Musical score by Nathan Furst. (1 hr. 51 min.)

Movies for 2011

Bardstown/Nelson County was close, but no cigar, with the nation when it came to the most attended movies last year. Of the top 10 nationally, we had seven locally make the list. Only one film — "Pirates of the Caribbean" — matched the national rankings with both being in fifth position. The three films that saw excellent attendance locally but not nationally were "The Help," "The Smurfs" and "Alvin and the Chipmunks."

The following lists the local rankings with the national rankings in parentheses.

1. "Twilight 4, Pt. 1" (3rd)
2. "Cars 2 — 2D and 3D" (8th)
3. "Harry Potter 7, Pt. 2 — 2D and 3D" (1st)
4. "Transformers 3 — 3D" (2nd)
5. "Pirates of the Caribbean 4 — 3D" (5th)
6. "Alvin and the Chipmunks 3" (20th)
7. "The Smurfs — 2D and 3D" (19th)
8. "The Hangover Pt. 2" (4th)
9. "The Help" (13th)

Volunteers sought for 'Operation Preparation'

Nelson County Public Schools is recruiting volunteers for an ambitious program to give eighth-grade and 10th-grade students a chance to meet with people and role models in careers of interest to them.

While the program itself is designed to help children prepare for the future, the schools they attend are busy preparing for the March 12 launch date of Operation Preparation, a statewide initiative sponsored by the Kentucky Department of Education and the Department of Workforce Development.

Operation Preparation is designed as a college and career readiness program centered on an advising week set for March 12-16. The program draws upon volunteer community advisors who will represent broad segments of the business community and workforce.

"Our students need to be thinking about their college and career plans very early on — even in middle school," said Nelson County Schools Superintendent Anthony Orr. "Who better to talk with students about their choices than volunteers who know what it takes to move successfully from through high school and further education to rewarding careers?"

Each school in Nelson County — working primarily through guidance counselors and the Family Resource and Youth Service Centers (FRYSC) — are working to coordinate volunteers and match them with students with an aptitude or interest in specific job fields.

The Nelson County School System has about 800 students in eighth or 10th grade who will be participating in the program.

Students will be placed in small groups of about five or 10 at each of their schools, to ask questions and take part in sessions with community advisors in specific fields of interest. Each session will last about 30 minutes.

Each school is seeking volunteer community advisors representing local businesses, elected officials, college or university students and employees, retirees, parents and concerned community members.

Participating schools have appropriate forms on hand and people to answer questions and help volunteer advisors who wish to participate. Prospective volunteer advisors should contact the specific school where they wish to participate.

Advisors are being asked to complete a 30-minute online training session, or training at the school where they wish to volunteer; sign a confidentiality agreement; and comply with school district policies and procedures.

Advising dates and contact information for participating Nelson County schools are as follows:

Bloomfield Middle School — Advising date, March 16. Please contact Jessica Sekulski or Doris Lewis at 349-7201

Boston School — Advising dates, March 12 and March 14. Please contact Pam Johnson or Christy VanDeventer at 350-2200

Horizons Academy — Advising date, March 15. Please contact Michelle Gosser at 349-7045

Old Kentucky Home Middle School — Advising dates, March 12, 13, 14 and 16. Please contact Michael Reindle or Lynn Potter at 349-7040.

Nelson County High School — Advising date, March 28. Please contact Cindy Hanson or Virginia White at 349-7010.

Clinic donation

Executive Director of the Nelson County Community Clinic Jan Tronzo, R.N., B.S.N., left, accepted a $300 check from Bonnie Cecil, treasurer of the Bardstown Women's Club and clinic volunteer. The clinic is a charitable health care organization that provides basic medical, dental, lab and pharmaceutical services free of charge to Nelson County residents who are employed but incapable of affording health care services. The clinic was started with a grant for almost $300,000 from what was then Flaget Memorial Hospital's parent organization, Catholic Health Initiatives.

ACT Prep Classes set for March

Once again, St. Catharine College will be offering classes to help prepare high school students to take the ACT test for entrance into college. Classes will be held at both St. Catharine College main campus near Springfield

March 24 and 31, as well as at Spalding Hall in Bardstown May 19 and 26. Registration is required and space is limited. Call Sr. Barbara Rapp at (270) 699-2157 for further information or to register.

tle or no pain; there is little or no scarring of the breast; no stitches are needed (the incision is so small that only a bandage is needed); it's a brief outpatient procedure; it costs less than surgery, which could be very helpful for a patient with a high medical insurance deductible; and results are extremely accurate.

"SBB represents an accurate and precise sampling of tissue without surgery from a suspected abnormality found on mammogram," according to Director of Imaging Services Kelly Boone. "Since most women with an abnormal mammogram do not have breast cancer, but rather have one of several benign breast conditions, SBB spares most women the discomfort and scarring associated with a surgical breast biopsy and allows them to immediately resume their normal activities."

Flaget President Sue Downs is proud to add SBB to the hospital's services, she said.

"Studies show that biopsies performed as a stereotactic procedure are as diagnostically reliable as open surgical biopsies," Downs said. "Early detection of breast cancer is crucial to a woman's health. That's why I am extremely pleased to announce that Flaget has expanded its services available to women."

Student is shocked to spy professor's feet of clay

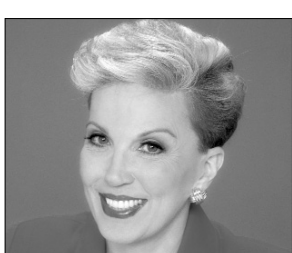

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old student taking courses at a community college. One of my classes is taught by a great professor who also works at a state college teaching other teachers.

After an evening class with him one night, I returned to the classroom because I forgot something and ended up walking with him back to the parking lot. While putting stuff into my car I saw him get into another student's car. I waited a while without them realizing I was there and ended up seeing my professor and this student smoking weed and fooling around.

I feel angry and betrayed knowing he would put his career in danger. Both are consenting adults, but I don't know whether I should report it or not. What do you think?

BETRAYED STUDENT ON THE WEST COAST

DEAR STUDENT: Unless you have ABSOLUTE PROOF that your professor was smoking something other than tobacco, I think you should keep your mouth shut. As you said, he was with another consenting adult. Are you sure your feelings of anger and betrayal aren't jealousy? Because you asked what I think, I'll tell you: Mind your own business.

DEAR ABBY: A year ago my husband and I met a nice couple on a cruise. We had so much fun with them we invited them to our home for a visit.

While they were here I showed them the photo album I had made with our cruise pictures. They were in most of them. It has been three months since their visit and we can't find the album. A few weeks ago, while talking with the wife on the phone I mentioned it. She said we didn't show the album to them but she wished we had. Abby, we know we did!

Should I mention it again or just make a new one and never invite them back?

MISSING MORE THAN THE PICTURES?

DEAR MISSING: You appear to be seeing the picture clearly now. While the couple may have been charming, they're not nearly as "nice" as you assumed. If you want a record of your cruise, by all means create a second album. (Surely you don't need me to advise you to never invite them back.)

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend and I have been together for 19 years. We have three children and from the outside looking in, you would think we have a wonderful life. But my boyfriend has been unfaithful numerous times, which has caused me to have trust issues and insecurities. I took him back because I wanted our children to be raised in a two-parent home, which is hard to find these days.

The problem is, two years ago I cheated on him. He found out by tracking my phone, bugging the house and monitoring my calls and emails. He "reminds" me of it every day and we argue constantly. I'm sorry it happened, but I still have trust issues because I can't see what he has been up to. I guess my question is — is this a relationship worth saving?

GOOD FOR THE GANDER —
GOOD FOR THE GOOSE

DEAR GOOSE: Let's review your letter. Nineteen years as a couple, three kids and he's a serial cheater. You cheated, too, and your complaint is that you can't monitor your boyfriend's activities the way he is scrutinizing yours?

Although you say you're staying together for the children, a household filled with anger and suspicion isn't healthy for them or for you. This is not a relationship worth saving in my book.

>>HOROSCOPES

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★ Confusion surrounds an issue. Give yourself time. Unexpected insights will head your way. Tension remains high and causes you to pull back frequently to see what is going on. Tonight: Chatting with a friend.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★★ You know what is happening. A friend has the ability to mire up the works, which could cause you to shake your head. Use caution, should this person approach you about a financial deal. You know how to say "no" without hurting anyone's feelings. Tonight: Treat a friend.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★★ Getting grounded could take some work this morning, but you will do it. Surprising news will energize you, and before you know it, you are in your element. You display a certain skill when dealing with the unpredictable. Tonight: All smiles. Why not?

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★ Know when to back off and get started on a personal project. Sometimes, interactions with others might give you a jolt. Of all the signs, you display a fine-tuned sensitivity. You also occasionally need to pull away from others. Tonight: Have dinner with friends.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★★ You know when you are in good standing with the universe. Seize the moment to further a long-term desire. Be aware that some people could be shocked, as you seem absorbed in a project they might have known very little about. Tonight: Loving the moment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★★ You assume the role of leader. Others might be too confused to know what to do. An associate surprises you with his or her brevity and insight, which leaves you deep in thought. Tension could build if you lose your focus. Tonight: A force to be dealt with.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★★ Keep reaching out for someone at a distance who means a lot to you. What you hear demonstrates what your imagination can create. A close associate or loved one intrigues you with his or her unpredictability. You wonder: What gives? Tonight: Rest.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★★ You might want to move in another direction or try something totally different. You could be closer to a child or loved one than you realize. Events in the near future will point to the depth of this person's attachment. Tonight: Just you and another person.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★★ Forget about having any say. Someone interjects his or her opinions and kisses up to the boss. You know better, but you have little choice. Let go and play. Make the most of the moment, and take part of the day off. Hook up with a loved one. Tonight: The only answer is "yes."

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★★ Focus on your goals, and get as much done as possible, despite the fact that there is uproar on the home front. By now, you might be getting used to this electrifying energy. Tension builds if you hold yourself back from saying what you think. Tonight: Squeeze in a stress-buster.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★★ You like excitement, and you have it. This energy could surround a loved one or child. On the other hand, it could surround jolting news. Regardless, be sure that this wave of excitement will take you in a new direction. Tonight: Be spontaneous.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★★ You could see wild swings take place financially. Your bank could make a mistake, or you might buy a lottery ticket. Before you decide you are lucky, make sure the bank clears the check or the events are real. Tonight: Order in.zzzzzz
